

(2015, Vol. 11(3), 379–394).

Professoressa Roberta De Monticelli of the Vita-Salute San Raffaele University of Milan is one of Europe's leading forces in phenomenology. Her research covers ethics and epistemology, the relationship between values and norms, and the philosophy of the person.

Complementary to publishing books and article on those topics, Roberta De Monticelli also has a long history in teaching, having held positions at the University of Pisa, State University of Milano, University of Geneva (holding Jeanne Hersch's chair after her retirement). She is currently the Director of the PERSONA Research Center at the Faculty of Philosophy at San Raffaele University, where she holds her corse in Ethics, Phenomenology and Philosophy of the Person.

Roberta De Monticelli received numerous prizes for her work, including the “Premio Art.3” for her contributions in civil and political progress in Italy (2012), the “Premio Nazionale di Filosofia Castiglioncello” (1998), the “Premio Rapallo per la donna scrittrice” for her 1988 “Il richiamo della persuasione. Lettere a Carlo Michelstaedter” and the “Premio Nazionale di Poesia Walter Tobagi” (1988).